

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a telephone comprising a device for memorizing or indicating of data related to incoming and / or outgoing calls. The telephone comprises a detector for supplying a line state signal to memorization or indication device, which memorizes or indicates the data as a function of the state of the line. Thus, the memorized or indicated data take account of calls received on or sent from a secondary telephone.